SHATTERED LIGHTS.

PRESENTED BY
TORONTO ARTS AND THEATRE COMPANY

February 27–March 8, 2026 at Studio Theatre 121

6:30pm – 9:30pm

WELCOME & NOTES FROM THE DIRECTOR.

Welcome to Shattered Light. Thank you for joining us for an evening of live performance. This production was created through months of collaboration, experimentation, and care. We are honored to share it with you.

Please silence all devices and refrain from photography or recording during the performance.

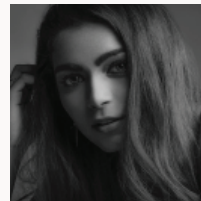

Jordan Lee – Lead Director

Shattered Light asks what happens when memory fractures. The characters in this play are not simply remembering the past — they are reconstructing it. Each scene is an attempt to retell, revise, or protect something fragile.

In rehearsal, we focused on stillness. On silence. On the moments between words. Grief is rarely loud; it lingers in half-finished sentences and gestures that never fully land.

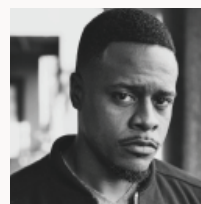

Thank you to this extraordinary cast and crew for their bravery and generosity.

OUR FIVE STARS & THANKS.

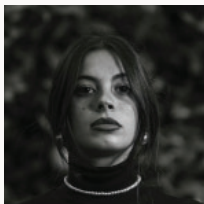

Maya Thompson (Elena Reyes)

Maya is a Toronto-based actor and graduate of the National Theatre School. Select credits include The Wolves, Antigone, and After the Fire.

Marcus Wright (Adrian Cole)

Marcus recently appeared in A Streetcar Named Desire and The Flick. He is drawn to psychologically complex roles and intimate performance spaces.

Priyanka Shah (Dr. Halvorsen)

Priyanka's recent credits include The Seagull, Human Error, and Blue Window. She also works as a movement coach and theatre educator.

NOTE FROM OUR PLAY- WRIGHT.

Avery Bennett – Playwright

This play began with a question: Can we ever tell the same story twice?

I wrote Shattered Light during a time when I was reflecting on how families preserve, distort, and protect memory. I hope audiences leave considering which stories they hold tightly — and which ones they've allowed to change.
